Holl,

Here are some of the topics that I want to discuss prior to the call with 3ric today:

Larry's Answers:

1Q. Beyond the 25 initial rev share lanes, how many more lanes do you want to manufacture to prove that model?

1A. Another 25 lanes. Proving the model is running the lanes through several Skeesons (2 at the minimum) on all 35 lanes. We would like to test 15 -20 lanes of our own if that is OK with FCU and BT.

2Q. What are the specific items that you want to change on the contract and what price tag do you want to attach to each one?

2A. Holly and I need to put our heads together on this. Larry has 2 (Putting a sunset clause on and being able to carve out more of the contract for us to try other events outside of bars)

3Q. What is the initial investment for equity once the small scale model is proven?

3A. 6 figures for the initial funding ($100,000), additional rounds would be similar. The additional rounds would need Bay Tek to perform due diligence

4Q. Will roll out of these lanes only be with the "Brew-Skee Owns all of them" model or will we look to work with a select few operators as well?

4A. Bay Tek would need additional funding to help with a full rollout if we continue with the fully owned lanes. Using operators or a partner like Betson could be an option.

5Q. Can we detail what a Zymo work for equity proposal would look like?

5A. How far along is the app? We have no idea what the scope of work would be

The Pro-Ject Proposal:

- This is the same path that Play Mechanics went down and was able to see big returns
- If we were to roll this out, I would want to roll it out in conjunction with the NSBL lanes
- The focus of the proposal needs to be narrowed for Brewskee-Ball and the bar market only
- Further, we need to focus on the seven Brewskee-Ball cities:
 - o San Francisco
 - o Los Angeles

- Brooklyn
- Austin
- Wilmington
- Gainesville
- Philadelphia
- I want to know what the pricing is after the initial work to actually get sponsors
- With a narrowed scope of work, can the price come down?
- How can we use this to push the project forward and how can it benefit BT?

Take care,

Ryan
